

Our kids still need to eat, learn, and stay safe during summer vacation.

During the summer months away from school, it's crucial that our kids have access to healthy meals, safe environments, and books and educational opportunities so they can keep learning. The Georgia Department of Education, Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning, Georgia Public Library Service, and other partners across the state have come together to give you access to helpful resources all in one place at:

georgiasummer.org

This online toolkit allows you to:

- find summer meals in your community;
- access Georgia Public Broadcasting's summer learning resources and programs for families;
- find a public library near you;
- locate a safe, licensed summer program for kids;
- receive free texts with tips and resources to help prepare your kids to succeed in school (text GEORGIA to 70138);
- gain access to high-quality summer learning experiences to help your kids succeed in college and future careers;
- and lots more.

Connect with other Georgians this summer by using the hashtag #SchoolsOutGA to share your photos, videos, and stories that show how these tools are helping your family.
